Local News

- O’Fallon Brewery has selected the location of their new brewery. It will be located in Maryland Heights near the Westport Plaza. The facility will have a capacity of 25,000 barrels a year, doubling the company’s current production capability. The new location should be brewing by the end of the year. For more information see an article on stltoday.com.
- Anheuser-Busch has announced the acquisition of Blue Point Brewing Company located in Patchogue, NY. Blue Point has a beer portfolio of more than 40 beers with sales concentrated along the East Coast.
- Starting this month, Schlafly Bottleworks has added a new VIP tour. The tour offers a deep look into Schlafly brewing operations and the ability to pour straight from bright beer tanks. The tours are the 3rd Saturday of each month. For more information see an article on stltoday.com.
- The RiverFront Times recently did an article on the Fallstaff Beer in St. Louis. It discusses all of the Fallstaff locations throughout the city. This article can be found on the RiverFront Times blog.
- Urban Chestnut Brewing continues to make progress on their new Grove brewery. The opening date has yet to be determined but should be within the next few weeks. Below are a few pictures of their progress.
